1 Introduction

The main purpose of traffic regulations is to improve the smoothness and safety of all traffic on the roads. Identifying the problems faced on the highway revolves around traffic. Traffic problems, conventionally revolve around traffic jams, traffic violations, traffic accidents, patients, and environmental pollution. A traffic jam is an obstacle to the process or movement of road users that occurs somewhere. Law enforcement officers, in this case, the Traffic Police, play a role as a deterrent (politie toezicht) and as an enforcer (politie dwang) in political functions. Apart from that, the traffic police also carry out regeling functions (for example, regulating the obligation for certain motorized vehicles to be equipped with safety triangles) and bestuur functions, especially in terms of licensing or issuance (for example, issuing driving licenses). There are more and more types of vehicles in the country. In an area, various problems will immediately arise in the field of road traffic, in this case, one of the problems that arises is in the form of traffic violations on the road. Traffic violations on the road can be caused by anyone, usually regardless of age, education, or social status. Whether it is done intentionally or unintentionally, it can disrupt the security, order, and smoothness of traffic as well as the peace of the community as road users, therefore it must be remedied by other means by conducting coaching and counseling activities for the community (preventive action) or by carrying out motor vehicle raids or routine operations carried out by the traffic police (repressive measures)[1].

Notwithstanding, most drivers know about the risks they face while driving a vehicle surpassing the greatest speed. Nonetheless, truly, not a couple of drivers do that. In confronting struggle, an individual for the most part completes what is called dislodging which appears as moving the objective of forceful way of behaving. Stress emerges because of sensations of risk from outside, which is now and again just a supposition with respect to the individual concerned. Humans frequently resort to defense mechanisms, such as acting out, in which the individual involved takes rash decisions, to cope with anxiety. Drivers who engage in this behavior may then drive their vehicles illegally. These days, grown-ups commit criminal traffic offenses as well as underage younger students, their degree of consciousness of traffic is still low, as should be visible from Police information. that there is as yet countless center and secondary school understudies who abuse traffic all through the year in the city of Semarang. In answering this issue guardians ought to be prevailing, as a rule we find that guardians effectively permit their youngsters to drive vehicles and are not restricted to the climate where the kid resides. Yet, it is likewise passable to bring a school vehicle, despite the fact that assuming you take a gander at it according to any point of view, it isn't satisfactory for an understudy to bring a vehicle since they are not mature enough and don't have a driving permit (SIM) [2].

The gatherings answerable for the security of street use have made an honest effort to conquer auto collisions. The quality of vehicles and roads has been improved, various activities have been carried out to ensure that there are no casualties or material damage, and various regulations have been prepared and implemented with education. The principal point of traffic guidelines is to build the nature of perfection and wellbeing of all traffic. go across in the city. Recognizing the issues looked on the thruway rotates around traffic. Traffic issues expectedly rotate around gridlocks, petty criminal offenses, car crashes, patients, and ecological contamination. Traffic violations are now mostly committed by children, due to the increasingly advanced development of the times marked by the increasing number of vehicles. Many children now drive motorized vehicles, even though they do not yet have a driving license (SIM) because they are not yet old enough. Children are a trust and a gift from God Almighty, which we must always protect because in them are inherent honor, dignity, and rights. rights as human beings that must be upheld [3].

In the context of efforts to implement legal provisions, both in the form of enforcement and prevention, law enforcement is a series of activities that include all activities, both technical and administrative, carried out by law enforcement officials to create an atmosphere of security, peace, and order in society, obtain legal certainty, and create conditions for the government to carry out development in all areas. Policing a term that has various definitions. Policing the full scale sense covers all parts of local area, public, and state life, while in the miniature sense policing restricted to the suit cycle in court, in criminal cases including the course of examination, examination, arraignment, and the execution of court choices that have extremely durable legitimate power [4].

For this situation, the importance likewise incorporates expansive and thin implications. From a wide perspective, maintaining the law likewise incorporates the upsides of equity contained in the sound of formal principles and the upsides of equity that exist in the public eye. Be that as it may, from a limited perspective, policing includes upholding formal and composed guidelines.

In general, people feel they have violated traffic rules only if the violator or person is caught by a traffic officer. If someone is caught committing a traffic violation on the road, then move the vehicle by the officer's orders and try not to disrupt the smooth flow of traffic, be polite when facing the officer, give answers as necessary to all the officer's questions and if in doubt about the violation committed, ask the officer for an explanation, recognize it. and obey the officers' actions by applicable regulations and do not try to bribe the officers because this action violates the law and is also not educational. If someone commits a traffic violation on the road but is not caught by a traffic officer, they should promise themselves not to commit another violation. It is necessary to realize that these violations can endanger oneself [5].

As per Regulation No. 22 of 2009 concerning Street Traffic and Transportation Article 1 passage (7) a vehicle is a method for transport out and about comprising of mechanized vehicles and non-mechanized vehicles. A mechanized vehicle is any vehicle that is driven by mechanical hardware as a motor other than a vehicle that sudden spikes in demand for rails (Regulation No. 22 of 2009 concerning Street Traffic and Transportation Article 1 section (8)). Non-mechanized vehicles are any vehicles that are driven by human and additionally creature power. Public mechanized vehicles are any vehicles used to ship products as well as individuals for a charge (Regulation No. 22 of 2009 concerning Street Traffic and Transportation Article 1 passage (10)). Each mechanized vehicle out and about should be tried. The purpose of motor vehicle testing which is carried out periodically is to ensure that the motor vehicle does not show technical deficiencies so that it can cause danger on the road. Motor vehicle testing, also called the KIR test, is a series of activities to test and/or inspect motor vehicle parts, trailers, attached trains, and special vehicles to fulfill technical and roadworthy requirements [6].

The condition of a road can also result in traffic accidents. Highways that are straight and free of potholes often cause drivers to run their vehicles at high speeds exceeding the specified speed limit, which can cause the driver to be careless so that if another vehicle suddenly swerves, the driver will not be able to control the vehicle and ultimately this can result in the occurrence of traffic accidents. Besides that, road conditions in the form of inclines, descents, or sharp bends can also result in traffic accidents, which are often caused by the reckless behavior of vehicle drivers who overtake other vehicles while on sharp bends. 3 Results and Discussion

3.1 The Role of Law Enforcement in Perpetrators of Criminal Traffic Violations by Minors in the Perspective of Law No. 22 of 1999

The primary assignment of examiners is to look for and gather proof, which with this proof will reveal insight into the lawbreaker act that happened and view as the suspect. This activity must be by applicable laws. The end-product of the analytical action is that the case record is ideal concerning all perspectives, ideal with regards to culmination of the document, as well as far as juridical and culmination of evidentiary prerequisites, as well as far as the execution of the assessment connecting with the substance of the material regulation affirmed against the suspect, assuming the aftereffects of the insightful assessment really satisfy the components of the plan of the lawbreaker act claimed and for which he will be charged. In the event that everything is proclaimed finished, the case records are given over to the Public Examiner (first phase of accommodation of case documents). Focusing on the exhaustiveness and flawlessness of the analytical examination is vital. Proficient specialists are supposed to create wonderful case records that follow the Criminal System Code.

The decision handed down must have a strong basis and consideration so that it can provide the fairest possible decision. In the appointed authority's choice, the part of juridical contemplations with respect to the lawbreaker act charged is really significant, where these juridical contemplations will straightforwardly impact the adjudicator's choice. Juridical thought is verification of the components of a lawbreaker act whether the litigant's activities satisfy and are by the crook act charged by the public investigator [10]. Hence, it is trusted that the adjudicator's choice will be found to mirror the upsides of equity and truth, and can be represented. to searchers of equity, lawful science itself, the soul of judges, and society overall and for equity in view of confidence in the All-powerful God.

This is a struggle. The traffic police are part of the police who are given authority in the field of traffic and therefore are the specifications of the police in general. "Because the traffic police are given this special task, special technical skills are also required, however, even so, this does not eliminate or reduce the main tasks assigned to each POLRI member. Therefore, faced with situations that can disrupt security and order in general, the traffic police must act with policing the nation did in a preventive and harsh way. Preventive policing completed to forestall infringement of the law by individuals from general society and this undertaking is by and large given to restrictive organizations and the police. If preventative measures have been taken and it turns out that there are still violations of the law, repressive law enforcement is carried out [11]. As a result, law enforcement agencies with judicial responsibilities must repressively enforce the law. In enforcing the law, we must pay attention to its benefit or usefulness for society, because the law is made for the benefit of society, so the implementation and enforcement of the law must not be detrimental to society. In the end, it will cause unrest. Policing likewise a social interaction that includes the climate, in this manner policing trade activities with the climate which can be called a trade of activities with human components. In friendly culture, legislative issues, etc, law enforcement is influenced by various realities and circumstances that occur in society.

Some of the community members, humans, in carrying out their daily activities include using roads as a means of land transportation in any form, covering all pieces of the street including reciprocal structures planned for traffic where the traffic process takes place. Often we see that road users still have low awareness of obeying applicable traffic regulations, which can lead to traffic violations and can even cause traffic accidents which endanger human safety and can also cause property loss or fatalities. Traffic violations on the highway were committed by residents. This community can include motor vehicle drivers who, when driving or driving a vehicle on the road, do not wear a safety helmet, violate traffic signs, or carry a driving license (SIM) or vehicle registration certificate (STNK). This is by Regulation Number 22 of 2009 concerning street traffic and transportation which peruses as follows: Every motorized vehicle driver is required to have a driving license. Several statutory regulations relating to road traffic and transportation, in the broadest sense. However, it should be noted that the positive impact of this legislation ultimately also depends on its enforcement, especially its mentality [12]. Basically, it is humans who cause road safety in most cases, whether they are drivers, entrepreneurs, service users, pedestrians, or officers.

It must be realized that the environment has a big influence on teenagers, especially in the cultural context of that environment. Children become delinquent because they are influenced by various social pressures, all of which have a pressing and coercive influence on the formation of bad behavior, as a result, children like to disobey normal rules, social norms, and laws. Children become delinquent/evil as a result of psychological transformation as a reaction to external influences that suppress and coerce their nature. Therefore, the more widely a child socializes, the more intensive his or her relationship with delinquent children will be, the slower the process of differential association will take place, and the greater the possibility that the child will become delinquent. In this case, the role of parents to awaken and restore the child's confidence and self-esteem is very necessary. It is necessary to educate children to be formal and firm so that they avoid the influences that come from a bad social environment [7].

The family is the nearest friendly climate for raising, and developing, and in which youngsters get the most importantly schooling. Consequently, the family plays a significant part in youngster improvement. The job of the family is vital in the event of criminal traffic offenses carried out by minors. That's what the explanation is on the off chance that guardians don't allow their underage kids to ride motorbikes, there is no way of criminal traffic offenses happening. can presume that younger students can possibly commit criminal traffic offenses indistinguishable from the help of their folks/family. This should be visible when guardians realize that their kid is equipped for driving a mechanized vehicle at this age yet don't give severe oversight to their kid to drive a mechanized vehicle. From this, it tends to be seen that kids who are as yet underage still truly need understanding and management from the family on the grounds that, with oversight from the family, the youngster will be more centered, other than that the family plays a major part in the kid's turn of events. All things considered, in the event that the guardians don't uphold and work with, the youngster can't drive a vehicle and commit infringement because of an absence of traffic information [13].

Severe endeavors are theoretical wrongdoing counteraction endeavors that are taken after a wrongdoing happens. Countermeasures with harsh measures are planned to make a move against the culprits of wrongdoings by their activities and right them again so they know that the activities they have carried out are unlawful and inconvenient to society so they won't rehash them and others won't do so taking into account that the assents they will bear are extremely weighty. In the event that to forestall criminal traffic offenses perpetrated by minors in the city of Semarang, many petty criminal offenses are as yet found, then, at that point, for this situation the police should put forth harsh attempts to make a move against younger students who carry out infringement so there is an impediment impact. by a child who has done something wrong but doesn't do it again, that is, the police officers carry out:

- a. A ticket is confirmation of an infringement. The capability of the actual ticket is as a solicitation to youngsters who commit criminal traffic offenses to go to a preliminary at the locale court, as well as proof of the seizure of products seized by the police from the kid who disregards them.
- b. The seizure was done on the grounds that the younger students didn't have a driver's permit since they were not mature enough to have a driver's permit.
- c. Reprimands are given to youngsters who disregard traffic however vow not to commit additional infringement by offering a composed expression that they won't disregard once more [14].
